As to the Collector's Office.

The Ordinance, Charter and Reform Committee reported favorably a resolution acted on in the committee before the suspension and death of Captain Frank W. Cunningham, directing the City Attorney to secure from the Legislature an amendment to the city charter abolishing the office of City Collector from the end of the present term, January I, 1914, and to confer the powers and duties on the City Treasurer, who collects all taxes for the State on the same assessment. Chairman Pollard, of the Finance Committee, said

Feel well-fed all day when you begin with fice as a check on other financial offices; that Norfolk had aboushed its Collector's office and gone back to the old system tor's office and gone back to the old system.

Dr. Miller asked why it was necessary to have two offices to check one against the other—why the City Treasurer's office couldn't check against itself. He thought the maintenance of a separate office unnecessary, saying that recent experience had shown that it was not the check it had been believed to be.

Two Collectors a Joke, Says Lynch.

Mr. Hobson proposed referring the matter to the Finance Committee, to which the pairon, Mr. Lynch, said he had no objection, provided the Finance Committee would report on it in a reasonable time, romarking that he had offered a similar paper last year, which the committee had never reported on. He thought that having so many offices was a source of weakness instead of poing a check one against snother, and that recent experiences had so shown. Haying two collectors, he thought a loke. The City Collector docsn't collect anything, he explained, the delinquent tax collector being the man who collects. The City Treasurer managed to collect water and gas bills all right, although it required the handling of five times as many bills, and he thought it no difficult matter to provide books by which all taxes could be paid at one office.

Should Revise System.

"At this time when we have the opportunity," said Mr. Pollard, "we should revise our tax collection system, so that a man can find out what he owes and be made to pay back taxes first. If the Council would stand for it, I should like to see an approprition made to employ a tax expert to revise our system of bookkeeping, and put the offices in proper shape. In Washington city they have a system by which you can tell in five minutes all the taxes against any property; you don't have to go from office to fice inquiring. The present system here is far from satisfactory. It is a tribute to the tax paying public rather than to the methods that 98 1-2 per cent, of the tax assessment is paid in voluntarily; it is not collected, as Mr. Pergusson thought that some changes should be made to require crediting of payments on all back taxes before current payments, to prevent land grabbing. In order to work out such changes, the paper was referred to the Committee on Finance.

The affairs of the Collector's office came in for another prolonged debate when Mr. Mills moved to take from the table the ordinance in regard to the rate of fees of the City Collector. The paper was adopted by the Council several months ago, reducing the scale of commissions from 5-8 to 1-2 of 1 per cent. In the Board of Aldermen it was amended so as not to take effect until January 1, 1914, and came back to the lower branch for concurrence in the amendment. Meanwhile City Collector Cunningham died, and toe office is in the hands of Collector Hules al interim, on a salary of $300 per month, with allowances for pay of deputies and expenses. Mr. Mills sald he would not ask for concurrence in the amendment, but for a committee a view of putting somebody in office Board of Aldermen.

then vote for a thing like this. It is inexcusable."

Mr. Rateliffe protested against going into so far-reaching a matter with eo few prosent. Mr. Mills denied that he had any improper motive in attempting to secure a committee of conforence, or that he had entered into any agreement by which the Cunningham family would divide the proceeds, of the office, if continued on a fee basic. Such a pension, he agreed, was alsurd, and not in the power of the Council to grant. The question of whether the office should be on a salary basis, he said, was different. He thought it probable there would be more delinquencies and greater cost to the city in their collection, if there were no incentive to the Collector.

Mr. Umlauf replied that he had beldom seen the citzens so worked up over a matter—that they were attacking members of the Council and officials who had done their duty about the office held by Captain Cunningham. After prolonged debate the paper was referred to the Committee on Ordinance, Charter and Reform.

The Ordinance, Charter and Reform Committee returned without recommendation the ordinances relative to redistricting the city into three or more wards, and they were referred to the Committee on Changes in the Form of Government, which has not yet been organized, though authorized more than two months ago.

Should Resign, Says Umlaut.

The Ordinance Committee recommended the rejection of a resolution making five a quorum of the James River Improvement Committee had seventeen members at present, requiring nine for a quorum, and that at the last five mechings it had falled to meet, and its payrolls were far behind. Mr Umlauf suggested that those of the committee who didn't care to serve might resign—that there was no honor without work. It was suggested that five might be made a quorum for approval of payrolls only, and the abolition of the committee, placing its duttes on the Street Committee.
